

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

Conclusion and suggestion are include in this chapter. The following conclusions can be formed based on the findings of the research and discussion presented above.

5.1 Conclusion

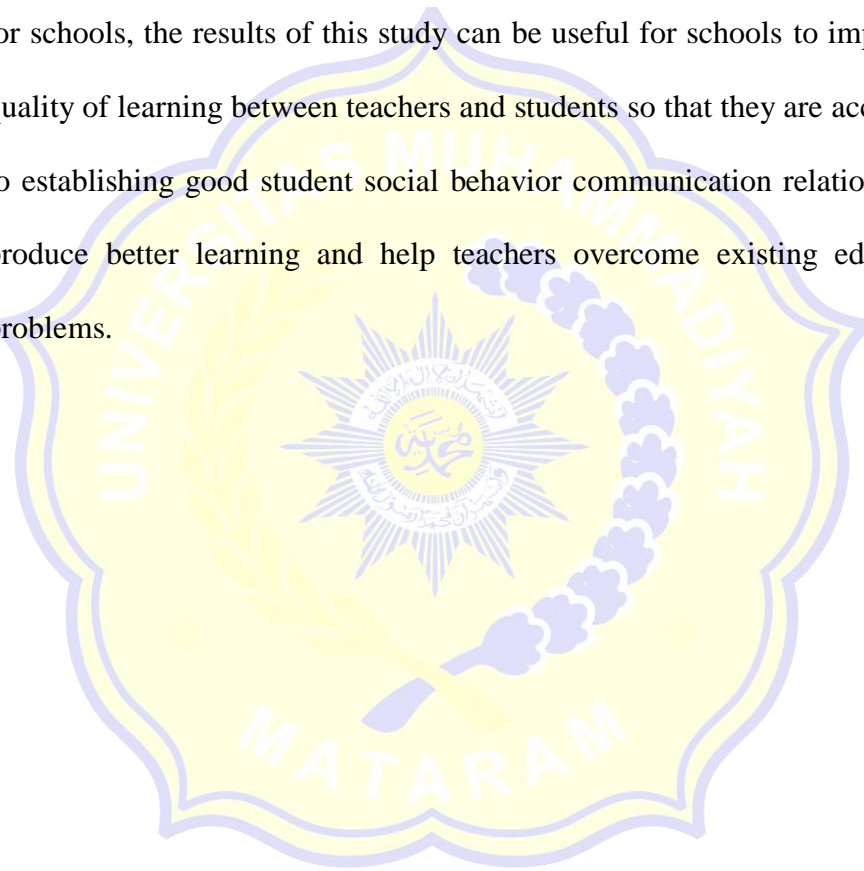

- A. The results of this study showed that there is an influence of students' social behavior factors in online schools based on interviews and questionnaires conducted by researchers, namely internal factors and external factors.
- B. Trigger factors are indicated by external factors, especially those from the, school and community. These external factors can be in the form of the influence of the environment around where the individual lives and coupled with the reinforcement (punishment and reward) that exist in the community.

5.2 Suggestion

The write would like to deliver some suggestions for the teacher, the next researcher and the schools.

- A. The next researcher hopes that this research can provide information about students' social behavior and other information related to online schools.

- B. For teachers, the results of this study are expected to provide benefits for teachers to improve students' social behavior in a good direction by implementing problem solving strategies with students' abilities and providing meaningful experience in carrying out research to improve students' social behavior.
- C. For schools, the results of this study can be useful for schools to improve the quality of learning between teachers and students so that they are accustomed to establishing good student social behavior communication relationships to produce better learning and help teachers overcome existing educational problems.
