

CHAPTER V

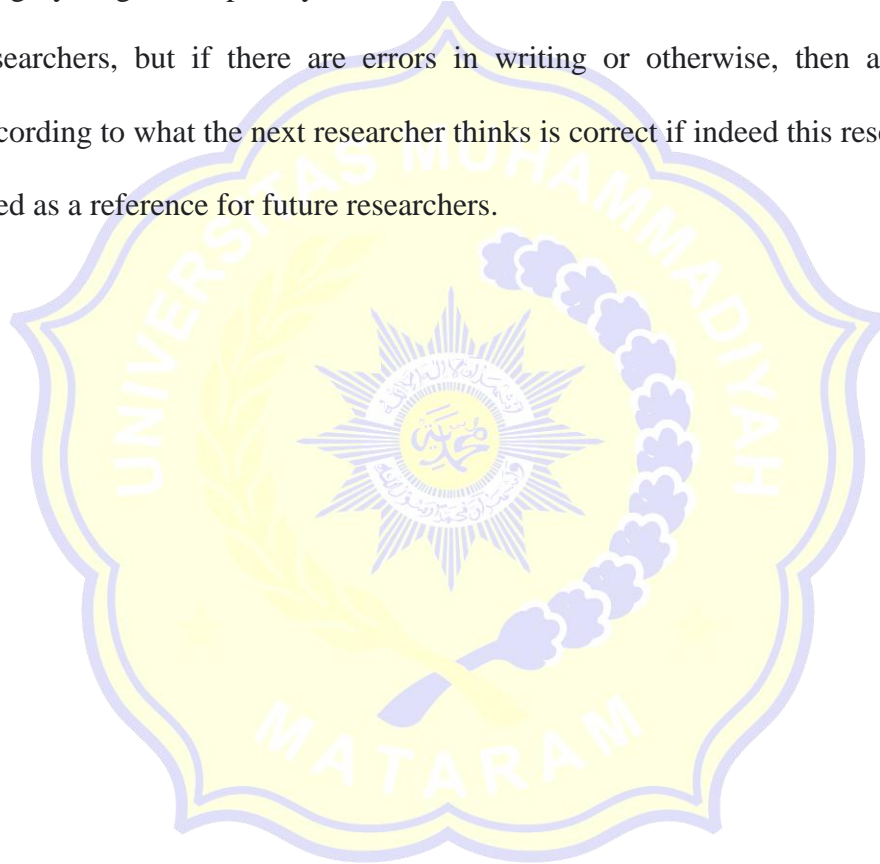

CONCLUSION

5.1 Conclusion

Figurative language is a figurative language used by everyone in expressing their own style of language. This research was conducted to find the figurative language in several viral songs on Tik Tok : Stay – The Kid Laroi, Justin Bieber, Build A Bitch – Bella Poarch, Leave The Door Open – Brono Mars, Anderson, Paak, Silk Sonic, It's Only Me – Kaleb J, Know Me To Well – New Hope Club, Dana Poala, Levitating - Dua Lipa ft. DaBaby, Beggin – Maneskin, Please Don't Go – Mike Posner, Here You Perfect – Jamie Miller, Good 4 U - Olivia Rodrigo, Watermelon Sugar - Harry Style. Where this research uses a qualitative descriptive method. There are ten of eleven songs that researcher choose that have or use figurative language that researcher found. The researcher found several type of figurative language in this reseach there are : repetition, metonymy, hyperbole, parallelism and simile. The figurative language that often appears is parallelism, which is eight times of all the songs that reseacher have analyzed because parallelism is a figurative language that is often used in every song that researchers analyzed. Parallelism is principle advocating that ideas of equal importance or significance should be treated at equal length within a poem.

5.2 Sugestion

The results of this study show that figurative language is often used in songs. With this research, it can help and motivate many people to continue to analyze the figurative language used by all groups, both from language in the form of speech, conversation, poetry or rhymes as well as from song lyrics sung by singers. Hopefully this research can be used as a reference for future researchers, but if there are errors in writing or otherwise, then adjust it according to what the next researcher thinks is correct if indeed this research is used as a reference for future researchers.
